SOCIAL SCIENCE

PROJECT WORK (CBSE MANDATE)

TOPIC – FOREST SOCIETIES AND COLONIALISM

Forests in India have been home to tribal populations since time immemorial. The life and economy of the tribal people are intimately connected with the forests. Development has had a serious impact on the lives of tribals across the world.

Group activity - In the light of the given statement prepare a paper presentation incorporating the themes listed below:

1. Shifting cultivation and overgrazing are a threat to the green cover. How?
2. Development and climate change has led to marginalisation of the forest communities and resultant migration. Analyse the impact of industrialisation on the tribal population of India.
3. Case study - Draw a contrast between the lives of present day tribal communities of lakshadweep with that of the primitive tribes of India.
4. Suggest the ways in which the tribals can follow sustainable living practices to live in harmony with nature.
5. How can civilised societies like that of the metropolitan city of Delhi, learn sustainability lessons from the tribal communities?

Instructions -

1. Present your research work on a regular size chart paper.
2. Information should be strictly handwritten.
3. You can make use of maps, newspaper articles, illustrations and statistical data to corroborate information.
